Joel Mark Harris has done a remarkable job for such a young author. John Webster is a handsome, broad shouldered experienced reporter, once stationed in Baghdad where he witnessed a bombing that killed and injured several people. John Webster is a war-time journalist who has returned to his native Canada A Thousand Bayonets to take on more tame assignments.

Where he saw all the terrible things human beings can do to one. His marriage has fallen apart due that one nightmare which he has refused to get counseling. A copy of the book was provided via Goodreads Firstreads in return for an honest review. I think I would have enjoyed a longer progression to the A Thousand Bayonets.

He has returned to Canada and is a crime beat reporter on a Vancouver daily, where the novel, a former war correspondent named John Webster maneuvers through the seedy underworld of Vancouver, trying to bring a vicious drug lord to justice.
