The momentary events do really take place, but we only notice them or are interested in them because of karma, our repertoire of desires and actions. Some versions of yoga argue that through their spiritual practices one can come into direct contact with one's real self or atman, while other Hindu doctrines suggest that the atman possessed by each individual is a reflection of the brahman or absolute in the universe. Carr and MahalingamDeutschRarnamurty Hisbeautyisdifferentfromeverythingelsebecauseit ispartofhisessence These aspects of ignorance reinforce the notion that is perhaps even more crucially an aspect of ignorance, that is, that we have a real and continuing self that is far more important than any other selves in existence. AbeChengLeaman, MaoSchram The problems that the philosophers had with understanding the notion of an individual afterlife was attacked by al-Ghazali, who argued for a philosophical justification of the literal Qur'anic notion of a physical afterlife. Muchofthetextistakenupwithdiscussionofthenatureofthehighestdeity, in practice this ideal did not lead to the ending of killing or fighting, it contributed to the growth of vegetarianism in Hinduism.
