The boy who asked, asked many questions about Trinity, received many answers, and was never satisfied. Easing my friend onto what remained of the bench, I moved toward the fragmented remains of a windowsill.

I grew increasingly aware of and afraid of my sins. I was becoming like a fish. So was my friend Wafa, who was helping to evacuate the wounded. Has it been easy? To me, demonizing the "enemy" as the Nation did hardly seemed the best way to learn to "love thyself."

Eventually the emails lead to phone calls, and from there we decided to meet. I felt a kinship with Malcolm and the Black Muslims. I took authority over the spirit of suicide.
